

SibFU's student projects are among the best projects to win a national competition

SibFU's students are among the awardees of the 'Best of Student Projects 2012'.

Olga Savelieva and Xenia Sergeeva, fourth year students from the Institute of Engineering and Construction, SibFU, are the awardees of the Best Idea nomination (second place). Their project is about building a creative cluster at an industrial company in Krasnoyarsk. Alexander Ledkov, a fifth year student from the Institute of Petroleum and Natural Gas Engineering, SibFU, got the third place for his project on oil well filters.

The student competition gave awards in two nominations to FSU students. Its organizers are the University of Project Management and PMSOFT, a leading Russian consulting company. Students submitted 130 projects to the competition.

The competition challenges included planning a project, timing and resource management, economic evaluation, estimating the efficiency of the project and assessing risks. Judging criteria were importance, novelty, application opportunities, project quality and how it matched the competition requirements.
