

University researchers will benefit from funding to support their projects

The university administration has chosen 152 research teams and funded their research projects to support early career professors and graduate research assistants in various fields of studies. The fields of exploration encompass various aspects from management to dendrochronology to creativity assessment. The grants range from 40 000 roubles (about $2000) to 300 000 roubles ($12 000). In total, 20 million roubles ($800 000) will benefit various university researchers, especially those at the early stages of their career.
